LATE AND IMPORTANT.

OFFICIAL.

Copy of a letter from Major General Gaines to the Governor of this state, received last night by express.

Head Quarters, Hartford, Geo.
January 23, 1818.

Sir,—By a letter just now received from Brigadier General Glasscock, I am informed, that a party of Indians concealed in the swamp of Cedar creek, seven miles east of Flint river, yesterday morning, fired upon and killed Mr. Thomas Leigh, assistant waggon master, and Samuel Lofters, of Captain Avera's company of Georgia militia. The waggon master had been sent out with a small party of men and a drove of pack horses, laden with provisions; which, by a prompt and judicious arrangement on the part of Major Heard, were secured, with the residue of the party and horses. General Glasscock immediately ordered out a detachment under Major Morgan, in pursuit of the Indians.

By a letter from Colonel Arbuckle of the 18th instant, I learn, that the Indians were to assemble near the mouth of Flint on the 21st, for the purpose of concerting measures for the destruction of the inhabitants on the Chatahoochie, and the reduction of Fort Scott. The latter they calculated upon starving out. Fort Gaines it was apprehended would be attacked. One of the inhabitants (Mr. Weaver) had been killed near the fort; a house had been burnt, and some other property destroyed.

The detachment and vessels under Major Muhlenberg with military stores, arrived at Fort Scott without any material loss, other than that mentioned in my last, although incessantly annoyed by a very large force from each shore, from the 15th to the 25th of December. A supply of provisions, ordered in November last, had not reached the Appalachicola at the date of Colonel Arbuckle's letter, (the 18th inst.) The troops were then without meat, but had engaged nearly one month's supply upon the Chattahoochie, part of which left Fort Gaines under a strong guard on the 16th. The supply of flour at Fort Scott is sufficient, allowing full rations of that article to the troops there, until the middle of next month—and the arrival of sixty thousand rations from New Orleans is daily expected—and even should this supply fail, I have not a doubt of having a competent supply sent down the Flint and Chattahoochie, in time to prevent the troops from suffering.

I have been thus particular in communicating to your excellency the state of our supplies, as well as the movements of the enemy, from an impression, that a knowledge of these subjects would be acceptable to you, and beneficial to the state over which you preside—as well as a wish to draw from you, a free communication of your views and wishes, upon whatever relates to the public service, connected with my command.

I have seen in the newspapers, wth equal surprise and indignation, the attempts that have been made to lull the public mind into a belief, that the hostile Indians desire peace, and are willing to lay down their arms! Sir, there will be no peace until those Indians are severely chastised.

The Chiefs were required to surrender the offenders! It was deliberately resolved in a large Council of the Semmoles and "Red Sticks" at Mickasukee, that the offenders should neither be punished nor surrendered.

Some of their Chiefs have triumphantly asserted, that we cannot beat them!—that we had never beaten them, except when we had "Red People to help us." It is not extraordinary they should entertain these opinions—they know little or nothing of the strength or resources of our country—and whatever information they have derived from their white friends (British Officers and Traders) could have no tendency to give them favourable impressions towards us. They must be beaten before we can calculate upon peace.

It is well known that seven of our citizens were killed by those Indians in the two years immediately succeeding the late war with England. Their chiefs admitted this, and that among the number was a woman and two children, Mrs. Garrett of this state.

The principal chief, Capichimico, is notifying the warriors of the resolution of the chiefs in council, adding that, "the day should never come when he would give up or punish a red man for killing a white man." These facts have been communicated to me by Indians, and through interpreters who I believe to be men of truth—nor have I a doubt but these facts were well known to those philanthropic writers of Peace, who have had the sagacity to discover, that hostilities were commenced by the troops under my command, on the 20th November last—and that we are the aggressors. It is not an act of war, according to this doctrine, to massacre and scalp seven unoffending persons, and among them a woman and her infants! What number then I would ask, the massacre of which would constitute an act of war? Sir, my own humble impressions upon this subject are, that the wanton massacre of an infant not yet able to lisp the enviable declaration of "I am an American Citizen," should be as promptly avenged, as if fifty, or fifty thousand citizens had been massacred. When reparation is refused by the Nation (whether red or white, civilized or savage) to whom the offenders belong—the Nation itself becomes accountable, and should be chastised for the outrage.

I have little confidence in the expectation of obtaining any considerable aid from the friendly Indians; even should they join me, the loss of their Chiefs may induce them to follow the example of the warriors under Perryman, and go over to the enemy; and I owe it to myself and to the public service to apprise you of the existence of a spirit of opposition, tending to counteract my efforts, having recently manifested itself in what is deemed to be the friendly part of the Creek nation; originating, as I have reason to believe, with some evil disposed white persons, actually engaged in smuggling negroes into the United States from East Florida. A considerable number, as I am credibly informed and believe, have been to the vicinity of the Creek agency. It rests with the agent to detect or explain this apparent violation of the law. The movement of the troops and the active and general hostility of the Indians near the Florida line, will have a strong tendency to render this traffic difficult and perilous; hence I expect to be honored with the ill-will of every one engaged in it.

I have the honor to be, very respectfully your obedient servant.

EDMUND P. GAINES,
Maj. Gen. Com'g.

His Excellency Wm. Rabun.

A teaching scrap of history.—In the 12th century, the divisions and animosities that had subsisted between the free republics of Italy greatly increased in violence by the assumption of two party names, Guelph and Gibelin. A Guelph hated a Gibelin with all his heart and soul, and a Gibelin hated a Guelph with the like inveteracy, more on account of his nominal distinction than for any thing else. These party names were kept up for ages and generations after the particular cause of applying them had ceased, and after the mass of the people had come to be altogether ignorant of the reason why the respectives parties were so called; but, nevertheless, the distant posterity of the original Guelphs and Gibelines harboured the same venom of heart towards one another as their forefathers did a century or two before. A Guelph deserved to have his throat cut for his name, and a Gibelin for his:—this was the opinion of the ignorant and violent rabble, just as they happened to be attached to the one side or the other. The rival names of Guelph and Gibelin, as they furnished full play for aspiring demagogues, had no considerable influence in the destruction of the liberties of Italy—of which some parts were once as free as are any parts of these United States.—Con Cour.

DESULTORY GLEANINGS

The original Blue Beard—As this extraordinary personage has long been the theme, not only of children's early study and terror, and, as no afterpiece had ever a greater run than that splendid and popular musical entertainment which bears the title of Blue Beard, our readers will, no doubt, be gratified in perusing the character of that being who really existed, and who was distinguished, in horror and derision, by that appellation.

He was the famous Gilles, Marquis de Laval, a Marshal of France, and a general of uncommon intrepidity, and greatly distinguished himself in the reigns of Charles the VI. and VII. by his courage; particularly against the English, when they invaded France He rendered those services to his country which were sufficient to immortalize his name, had he not for ever tarnished his glory by the most horrible and cruel murders, blasphemies, and licetiousness of every kind. His revenues were princely, but his prodigality was sufficient to render an emperor a bankrupt. Wherever he went, he had in his suit a seraglio, a company of players, a band of Musicians, a society of sorcerers, an almost incredible number of cooks, packs of dogs of various kinds, and above two hundred led horses. Mezeray, an author of the higest repute, says, that he encouraged and maintained men, who called themselves sorcerers, to discover hidden treasures, and corrupted young persons of both sexes to attach themseves to him, and afterwards killed them for the sake of their blood, which was requisite to form his charms and incantations. These horrid excesses may be believed, when we reflect on the age of ignorance and barbarity in which they were certainly, but too often practised. He was, at length, for a state crime against the duke of Brittany, sentenced to be burnt alive, in a field at Nantes, 1440; but the duke of Brittany, who was present at his execution, so far mitigated the sentence, that he was first strangled, then burnt, and his ashes buried. Though he was descended from one of the most illustrious families of France, he declared, previous to his death, that all his horrible excesses were owing to his wretched education.—Fashionable Mag.

Taxation is confessedly one of the most difficult branches of Administration, to know the exact weight of impost that every subject will bear.—The Arabian proverb, in allusion to this, says, "it was the Camel's hair that broke the Elephant's back

Carlini was the first comic actor on the stage of Padua: a single glance of his eye would diffuse smiles over the most rigid countenance. A gentleman one morning waited on the first physician in that city, and requested he would prescribe for a disease to which he was not merely a subject, but a victim—Melancholy—"Melancholy," repeated the Doctor, "You must go to the Theatre, and Carlini will soon dissipate your gloom, and enliven your spirits."—"Dear Sir," said the patient, seizing the Doctor by the hand, "excuse me; I am Carlini himself; at the moment I convulse the audience with laughter, I am the prey of the disease I came to consult you on."

A ruby-nosed devotee of Bacchus, when reproved for the heinous sin of drunkenness, justified himself by quoting from Goldsmith, "that virtue consists not in NEVER FALLING, but in RISING every time we FALL."

The transmigration of souls, says the sprightly Goldsmith, is no doubt false and whimsical; but nothing can be more certain than the transmigration of bodies: the spoils of the meanest reptile may go to the formation of a prince, and, on the contrary, as the poet has it, the body of Cæsar may be employed in stopping a beer barrel

The Un-natural Son.—PHILLIP THICKNESSE, Esq. late governor of Landguard Fort, and author of the celebrated travels through France and Spain, and other sentimental works of merit, has the misfortune to have a natural son (in other respects very unnatural) who affects to slight and be ashamed of his father. This son, who, in the maternal right, has assumed the name and title of GEORGE TOUCHET, Baron Audley, and enjoys a very considerable estate in England, has, upon all occasions, manifested the greatest contempt of his father and frequently passes him in the street, mounted in his carriage, without paying the least compliment or attention to the old gentleman on foot. The last time Mr. Thicknesse returned from Spain, being, as usual, quite out of cash, and in great necessity, he applied to the son for relief, which was peremptorily and brutishly refused.—In this emergency he instantly hired a little stall in one of the most public streets of London, and put up a sign over the door with a boot and shoe painted thereon, and the following words in large gilt letters: BOOTS AND SHOES MENDED HERE, BY PHILIP THICKNESSE, FATHER TO LORD AUDLEY. It had not hung there twelve hours before a billet was sent, inclosing a bank note for a hundred guineas, requesting, that in consideration thereof the sign might be instantly taken down and burnt.——A sense of shame will operate upon the feelings of a bad man when he is become entirely callous to those of nature.

It is much in favour of him who labours under a deficiency of knowledge to be sensible of his ignorance. As when, by the sensation of hunger a man in a weakly state becomes sensible that his stomach is empty, it forms a favourable presumption; but, when a man's stomach is empty, if he has the sensation of its being full, he is certainly a good deal out of order.

Of all the pleasures in which the soul of man most delights, that of sympathy is surely the chief. It can unite and mingle not only two but ten millions of spirits a-one. Could a world be spectators of the sorrows of a Lear, a world would with one consent participate in them; so omnipotent is the power of sympathy. It is the consolation of poverty, it is the cordial of friendship, it is the essence of love. Pride and suspicion are its chief enemies: and they are the vices that engender the most baneful of the miseries of man.

During the poll for Westminster, in 1784 a dead cat being thrown on the hustings, one of Sir Cecil Wray's party observed it stunk worse than a fox: to w Mr. Fox replied, there was nothing e ordinary in that, considering it was a cat,

PITTSBURGH.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1818.

Pennsylvania Legislature.—The bill for the erection of a STATE PENITENTIARY, on the public land adjoining the town of Allegheny, opposite to this city, has passed the House of Representatives. The first section of the bill appropriates 60,000 dollars for building the Penitentiary. The second section authorises the select and common councils of the City of Pittsburgh, in joint meeting, at their first stated meeting in April next, to appoint Commissioners to select a site for the Penitentiary of not less than 20 acres of the public and aforesaid, which is by the bill appropriated for the purpose contemplated; the commissioners are also authorised to make necessary contracts for the building, &c. &c.—By the 3d section the Commissioners are authorised to appoint an architect to superintend the building, who is to be allowed not more than five dollars a day for each day he may be necessarily employed in the work. The 4th section authorises the Commissioners to examine the accounts of the superintendant, and when approved, to draw warrants for the same, on the governor, to be paid by the State Treasurer.

It is stated in the National Intelligencer hat a contract has been entered into for ecting at the mouth of the Mississippi a ight House, on a scale and in a style, comsurate with the magnitude of the trade hat river. The obstacles which have so impeded the accomplishment of this ject, are at length overcome, and it is ntemplated, it will be fully effected with- two years.

Emigrants.—A bill has passed both uses of the Legislature of this state, d only requires the signature of the Governor to become a law, enacting that the mber of passengers on board of any merant vessel arriving in the port of Philaphia, shall not exceed more than one to ry two tons of said vessel. There some other regulations prescribed relato provisions, &c. which had become essary from the inhuman manner in ich some of the commanders and owners foreign ships treated their passengers.

SEMINOLE WAR.—The Louisiana zette mentions a report from Mobile, t Fort Crawford had been stormed by savages, and the garrison of fifty men t to death.

A bill to tax the branch of the bank of the ited States, introduced in the Legislae of Massachusetts, has been postponed, il the meeting of the next session, in or- to give time to procure the opinions of Attorney and Solicitor generals as to constitutionality of such a measure.

The two important maritime towns in the ridas are St. Augustine and Pensacola. se, though small, must be exceedingly , as we find that as far back as 1507, Augustine was a flourishing little seat, under the French. They held it for y years; and Sir Frs. Drake who was uring the seas in that neighbourhood, d an attack upon it in 1536, but with at success we do not know at present. was sacked in 1665 by the pirates, who rmed in and about the West India islds. The English again attacked it in 702. While in possession of the English singular plan of colonization was adopted. ,000 Greeks, part from the Morea and e adjacent islands, were brought to Flori- and built a town seventy miles from Augustine, called New Smyrna. They deavored to create a revolution, but fail- . The Floridas, after being in possession Spain, France and England, was finally stored to Spain; and there is every reason to believe that they will become our property, and not transferrable hereafter to any foreign power.—Nat. Advocate.

The bodies of the two unfortunate youths who had been missing since Monday evening last, were on Saturday last discovered under the ice in the Tyber, about thirty yards from the shore. One of them was the only son of Adrian Benjamin Bentzen, Esq. governor general and commander in chief of all the islands belonging to His Danish Majesty in the West Indies; he had only a few days before accompanied his grandfather John Jacob Astor, Esq. to this place. The other was a son of Mr. Tennison of this city, and was one of the most handsome and amiable young men in Washington.

There has scarcely ever been witnessed a greater degree of solicitude than was evinced on this mournful occasion. Every class of our fellow citizens seemed to participate in the affliction which the untimely fate of these promising boys had produced. The funeral procession was attended by the family of the president, the secretary of state, the speaker of the house of representatives, many members of both houses of congress, foreign ministers, the commissioners of the navy board, officers of the army and navy, and an immense concourse of citizens. The funeral solemnities were performed in a most impressive manner by the Rev. Mr. Hawley.—Wash. City Gaz.

From the National Intelligencer, Feb 9.

St. Mary's, Jan. 24.

"The patriots, as they are called, are preparing to leave Amelia Island; but where Gen. Aury and his followers will take up their future residence is not yet ascertained. The Republica, formerly the Morgiana has already sailed, and gen. Aurys' brigantine, the Mexican Congress, once the Calypso of Baltimore, is nearly ready for sea. She is now receiving her finishing repairs at a wharf here The writer of this had an opportunity of seeing gen. Aury, an evening or two past, at a splendid ball given to the officers of the army and navy in this place; where he was treated with every attention by all. He is a fine looking well made man, about six feet high, and appeared to be not more than twenty-eight, or thirty years of age with a countenance possessing strong traits of intelligence. He appeared somewhat melancholy, and therefore talked but little during the evening: though he seemed grateful for the attention he received. A few days has produced strange alterations in his affairs. About six weeks past he was absolute lord of Amelia Island; and since that time, he has been in the custody of the civil officers of this country for debt; has been obliged to give bail for his appearance at our courts. But yesterday Cæsar might have stood against the world now none so poor to do him reverence, is fortune's device."

From the N. Y. Evening Post, Feb. 6.

By the arrival last evening of the brig David Richards, in 21 days from Falmouth, (Jam.) we have received a file of the Cornwall Gazette, printed at that place, to the 14th January, from which we copy some late accounts of the operations of the patriots and royal forces on the Spanish Maine. In one sanguinary battle, fought on the 2d December where the patriot forces consisted of 1500 men, 1200 were slain. The loss on the part of the royalists it is said to amount only to 11 killed and 98 wounded. The troops of the latter fought to desperation, and are said to have been equalled only by those of Marengo, Austerlitz, and Jenna.

Capt. Lane, of the brig Franklin in 35 days from St. Martha, informs, that the Patriots were carrying all before them to the windward. About the 26th December, the Patriot troops, four to six thousand strong, were within a days march of the city of Santa Fee, which was garrisoned by only about 200 Royalists, and they in a sickly state.

About the same time, a fleet of ten sail, said to be commanded by Admiral Lord Cochrane, came to the mouth of St. Martha, and then stood to the westward for Carthagena, for the purpose as was supposed of blockading that port.

FROM AMELIA ISLAND.

We have accounts to the 28th ult. at which time, affairs remained in statu quo. The American land and naval forces were still at Amelia. Aury and his followers had not left the Island: and it is believe he will remain there until he hears of the fi nal decision of Congress, relative to kee ing possession of Amelia, which he expec will be given up to him. Immediately surrendering to the American authoriti Aury sent his secretary to Washingt City, with despatches, remonstrating high terms against the proceedings of th President, and stating certain claims whic as to the Island of Amelia, &c. Thre vessels under the Mexican flag were at St Mary's repairing, in order to be ready to take the Commodore and his heroes away should they be obliged to go.

Savannah Repub.

A rumour is circulating in the French papers, "that after much discussion, it was agreed between the ministers of the five great powers that the negotiation between Spain and her colonies, under their mediation, should be carried on in France, and that the matter is now so far advanced that the claims of the province of Venezuela will most probably be taken as the basis of the negotiation, viz. That the supremacy of Spain shall be acknowledged on the following conditions—1, the establishment of provincial assemblies on a fair and just representation of the inhabitants of each district—2, that a large proportion of S. American natives shall have admission to places of trust and authority—3, that they shall have the sole right of taxing themselves—4, that they shall have a free trade with all the world—and 5, that there shall be no restraint on any species of cultivation or industry, or of import or export, but such as their own assemblies shall impose.'"

The French papers state as a singular occurrence, that Buonaparte's four marshals, Boudinot, Victor, Marmont and Oudinot, breakfasted with the king.
